

Course Title: Project Work
Course Code: IL-C-1005

Course Objective: It can be safely said that half of the lawyering is drafting. A lawyer complete in drafting cannot be incomplete in presentation. The projects are mainly based on contemporary developments in legal jurisprudence with manifold objectives. The projects aim to harness writing skills among the budding lawyers and, at the same time to keep them abreast about the recent judicial and legislative developments.

Course Outcome: The students writing skills will be sharpened by these projects. They will be able to write writs, suits, written statements, applications, opinion pieces etc. and write reviews, comments on legislative enactments or judicial pronouncements. They will also be able to write policy papers, reports or projects on any theme.
