

Course Title: Sociology of Indian Society
Course Code: IL-C-203

Course Objective: This paper aims to introduce students to the traditional features of Indian society, various dimensions of social change, and social problems in India. It is suggested to the teacher and learners that the fundamental ideas of Indian sociologists and social anthropologists like G.S. Ghurye, M.N. Srinivas, Y. Singh, S.C. Dube, I. Karve and so on must be referred to while discussing the basic features of Indian society.

Course Outcome: After completing this course, students will know the salient traditional and contemporary features of the society in India. The course will train students in some of the basic ideas of Indian sociologists and anthropologists and their works. Students will be able to make sense of the micro-level and macro-level problems of everyday life in Indian society.