

Course Title: Constitutional History of India
Course Code: IL-C-206

Course Objective: The learning objectives of this module are as follows:

1. To study the meaning, definitions and origins of constitutional law.
2. To understand the evolutionary nature of the constitutional history of India.
3. To determine the pre-colonial and post-colonial relevance of the Constitutional history of India.
4. It will make students understand the impact of different charters and Acts passed by British India and then adoption of same by Constituent Assembly.
5. To analyses the various views regarding the constitutional history given by various Jurists.

Course Outcome: Students completing the course will be able to:

- Comprehend the historical evolution and relevance of the Constitutional History of India.
- Define and describe the role of Constitutional history vis a vis nature and scope of constitutional history;
- Develop knowledge of significant incidents of constitution-making before and after the Independence of India;
- Analyse and discuss National and International efforts for the codification of the constitution;
- Understand the specific British charters and policies governing enactment of the Constitution for India;
- Critically evaluate the impact of Constituent Assembly Debates on passing of Indian Independence Act, 1947 and relevant Constitution of India;
- Determine the pre-colonial and post-colonial relevance of the Constitutional history of India; and
- Analyse the various views regarding the constitutional history given by various Jurists.